We know now why French women don't get fat – well here's a new reason you won't be seeing the faces of French women getting old any time soon...

The launch of Aussie brand Skin Doctors in France has caused a veritable FRENZY with their Eye Tuck product becoming the number 1 seller in their beauty lab within six days

Skin Doctors also launched in the prestigious French perfumery Nocibe and the results were just as exciting selling 8565 units in first 11 days without one piece of advertising!

It's just the next chapter in the global expansion of Australia's leading Cosmeceutical Brand.

Skin Doctors sell to over 30 countries and have quickly become the most popular cosmeceutical line in Europe. After its launch in UK department store Fenwick's, buyer Rebecca Elcock stated that Skin Doctors powerful anti-aging preparations regularly sell out – there's even a waiting list for many of the popular brands top products which is now gaining cult status due in part to the growing number of celebrity fans spotted buying the products. Rebecca says "Skin Doctors is the most profitable area in the whole beauty department."

That success was seen again in Amazonian beauty retailer Boots the Chemist who sell over 40% of all cosmetics in the UK. Commenting on Skin Doctors incredible popularity in the UK, Boots' skincare buyer said "As the UK's leading beauty retailer, we are renowned for being market leaders in sourcing the latest beauty innovations and responding to customer demand. Skin Doctors is a leading cosmeceutical brand that perfectly complements our new Derma Skincare Centres and their products are proving to be so popular with our customers that we cannot keep them in stock fast enough!"

And it's not just English speaking countries that understand the Cosmeceutical message. Famous for their cosmetic alternatives to surgery, Skin Doctors have become a hit on every market they have launched. Even Sweden's number one department store NK, were scrambling to get their hands on Skin Doctors. "As Sweden's most prestigious department store

we are only interested in brands with established credibility and we were very excited to take on the UK's leading cosmeceutical brand...it is already very popular with our customers, which is reflective in the high level of sales"

“With a growing reputation World wide and fans like Eva Longoria and Robbie Williams, Skin Doctors have secured their firm positions as leaders on the international anti-aging map.”

It's no surprise then that Skin Doctors International export sales have now surpassed sales in their home country, Australia. Managing Director Sonia Amoroso is thrilled with the international response to Skin Doctors. "It's so exciting for us to receive such powerful recognition from the worlds leading retailers. It's great to pick up international copies of magazines such as Vogue and Cosmopolitan and read about how well the brand is performing overseas and how many celebrities are loving Skin Doctors! Our results focused formulations really make a dramatic difference in the skin and it's great to see that message translate across all cultures."

When asked why Skin Doctors formulations perform such dramatic transformations in the skin her answer is fast and simple: "We develop products to treat skin that inhabits the harshest environment in the world. We have a hole in our ozone, extreme temperature variations and let's face it, a lifestyle that is simply not conducive to youthful skin. I think overseas they recognise this and realise that if a cream is powerful enough to treat sunbeaten Aussie skin and make such dramatic improvements in tone, texture and aging skin – then imagine what it can do for them!"

Well, the proof is in the testimony of the hundreds of thousands of Australian women enjoying dramatically younger looking skin. And now, with a growing reputation World wide and fans like Eva Longoria and Robbie Williams, Skin Doctors have secured their firm positions as leaders on the international anti-aging map.
